Researching articles and documents for the past 2 years on CO2 pipelines has opened my eyes to what they do to change the life styles of someone before. The 12 inch co2 pipeline in ND that carries CO2 to Canada has a manuel on their web site called living and working near a CO2 pipeline. It says anyone 1 mile either side living near their pipeline should have a "safe room" prepared in the event of a leak. It states people should have an inner room on the highest level with heavy plastic and duct tape in order to seal off vents, windows, and doors. It also says to have a supply of food and water in that room to survive on until responders might get to you. So how is this going to affect property values either buying or selling property, and in Summits case the distance would be more than 3 miles either side as theirs is a 24 inch pipeline if you have plastic and duct tape and a supply of food and water in a room, some closer might want to keep it up year round because there will be only minutes to prepare before unconsciousness occurs. Imagine your family having been living your life, and suddenly these are forced on you or your neighbors land bringing these threats. Those adjacent don't negotiate for any easement payments, they are just unfortunate consequences of a private for profit corporation with no experience saying this is some how good for those in the counties. I beg to differ

This is the official site of that CO2 pipeline and by opening the brochure you will find those facts on making a safe room for those unfortunate enough to be forced to have to put their families through that. <https://www.dakotagas.com/about-us/pipelines/souris-valley-pipeline?fbclid=IwAR3da5BPIHGnDbCJxHc3UdQiliQJ8Nv-EBwa-E1gr2SDEdm2GurvUS6EPJs>
